OUR COURSE A HAPPY MEDIUM BETWEEN GERMAN AND ENGLISH METHODS, DECLARES DR. ADAMI

Noted Pathologist Endorses Our Own System of Medical Instruction in an Address to the Medical Society

CROMBIE CHAIRMAN OF MEDICAL BANQUET

The main topic of the evening at the Medical Society was Dr. Adami's discourse on Medical Education abroad. He started by referring to the Carnegie Foundation Report, on Medical Education. He hurriedly reviewed this book of 733 pages and suggested that it would prove good reading for one desirous of knowing the facts, as they stand in this country. Continuing he gave a brief history of medicine criticizing Dr. Flexner's statements on the same subject. He said "that a chemical laboratory existed in Cambridge about forty years before ones mentioned by Flexner, and that dissection was taught in Edinburgh in 1814, and at same time John Hunter in London taught anatomy and dissection, having his students as assistants. Clinical Medicine was probably first taught in 1608, but did not really get a firm hold until the first part of 18th century in Holland. The Scientific Spirit first showed itself at University of Berlin, 1809. But 50 years before Edinburgh was associated with a University. Preliminary Medical Education has had a good effect on Medicine. Especially physiology as taught by Miller, of Berlin, Ludwig, at Leipsic, and at Munich.

These subjects brought forward famous men whose scholars held chairs of Medicine and allied subjects in all leading schools of Europe.

Practically all leading men of last 50 years had their inspiration in Pathology. The University schools men gradually working up in Germany, but in Great Britain, the centre of Medical Education is in London and associated with the hospitals. Dr. Flexner points out difference between University Ideal and English Hospital Idea. The German method tends to continuity of schools, but the English system has turned out the greater men, such as Graves, Addison and Bright. The English as well as the German system have their weaknesses, the German's being too systematic, which the English system causes too much competition due to cramming for examinations leading to various degrees. England leads in Physiology. Pharmacology is poor while Pathology is in a muddled state. McGill has striven to take the middle course. There is complete freedom of the wards and personal contact between patient and student. The result is a man well grounded in all subjects, a man who going into general practice is on intimate terms with his patient and does not regard him as a purely scientific subject. Thus the cause of medicine is truly advanced. Dr. Adami, in closing said, "Let the schools work out their own salvation, do not bind them to a hard and fast line of study. As he sat down he was heartily applauded and Mr. Henderson '13, arose and moved a vote of thanks, which was seconded by Mr. Moore '14. Mr. Goldbloom gave an interesting monologue about "Time and Sal, a hot poker, and a love affair." The meeting closed, after a case for diagnosis, with the election of the President of the Medical Dinner Committee, Mr. Crombie '13, being the successful candidate. There was a good crowd in attendance and all voted it a most interesting evening.

VARSIITY NEWS

The first and second teams have been put through hard snappy signal practices the last couple of nights; ending with a run and a little extra work for the halves. The men will be in splendid shape for Saturday.

Frank Knight is back in the game. The veteran scrimmage has been out of the game since the fatal day at McGill.

Maynard's ankle is not perfectly strong, but he may be in the game Saturday. Hume Crawford did good work Saturday, and may be found in Maynard's place, should he not play.

If Knight and Maynard both get in the game, Varsity will for the first time this season have every man in shape. They have been crippled ever since the Old Boys game, and this has meant a lot to them.

JUNIOR DANCE TO BE FINEST IN YEARS

Restricted Members and Orchestra Arrangements Guarantee this

That enjoyable annual function of the University, the Junior Dance, will be held this year, as usual, in the Union, on the 22nd of this month. The committee have been working very hard of late, and there is no doubt at all, but that the Dance this year will eclipse those of other years by a wide margin.

Of course the success of the Dance depends mainly on three things, first, good music; second, a good supper; and third, a good floor. The first two of these objects can easily be attained, but the third is more difficult. However, the Committee certainly appear to have taken a step in the right direction in regard to this, in the limitation of the number of tickets. This number has been placed at 150, and they will be limited strictly to this number.

These Tickets will be placed on Sale at the Supply Room on Monday at noon, and don't forget, they are strictly limited to 150.

Watch the "Daily" for further information and particulars regarding programme and other details, and be sure and get to the Supply Room early and "avoid the rush," for this Dance is going to be one of the most enjoyable social affairs of the season.

GAY CATHERING AT Y. M. C. A. RECEPTION

Freshmen Make their Debut in the Social Whirl

A reception was held yesterday evening for the class of 1916 in the large room at Strathcona Hall which was tastefully decorated in red and white, McGill banners being very prominent, and was well attended by the new arrivals at McGill and the R. V. C.

The first part of the evening was spent in making acquaintances. The programme was a musical one and was divided into nine parts for each of which those present divided themselves up into couples. This was a welcome change from former receptions when subjects for conversation were chosen for each part of the programme and posted on a board.

Though no subjects for conversation were provided they did not seem to be lacking as conversation seemed quite as popular as the musical programme, which was nevertheless very much appreciated.

An excellent supper closed the programme, and as the mystic letters H. S. H. on the programme indicated, each man had the pleasant responsibility of seeing his supper partner home.

The committee, selected from the R.V.C. and the Y.M.C.A., are to be congratulated on having arranged a most successful and pleasant evening.

SPLENDID FORENSIC EFFORTS OF UNDERGRADUATE DEBATORS ON SUBJECT OF HOME RULE

Silver Tongued Orators Hold Forth at Last Night's Meeting of Literary and Debating Society

NO DECISION WAS ARRIVED AT BY JUDGES

McGill students showed little interest in the fate of Ireland last night when the Home Rule question was threshed out at the "Lit." Barely two score were present to hear the addresses, although the occasion was an important one and the best of the Society's speakers were named on the extensively advertised programme.

The debate was in the nature of a trial as it is intended to choose the debaters to oppose Queen's in the opening intercollegiate contest here on Friday, Nov. 29th, from last evening's speakers.

Messrs S. Bruneau and D. McGuire supported the resolution which read: "Resolved that the Home Rule Bill should be passed," while Messrs W. F. McConnell and Hugh Farthing upheld the negative.

Previous to the debate there was an election for the position of vice-president following the resignation of Mr. M. T. Burke, who explained that he could not find time to attend the meetings. Messrs Bieler, Atkins and Walsh were nominated but the two former asked to have their names withdrawn. Mr. Walsh entered in time to find himself elected and despite his prolonged opposition, was finally persuaded to accept the office.

The debate which followed was an instructive one, the speakers' addresses showing the results of careful preparation. There was a great wealth of material brought out and many facts were produced which had not as yet been brought to light on this side of the Atlantic, where very little of the debate on the Bill proceeding in the British House of Commons has appeared in the Canadian press.

Mr. McGuire opened the question for the affirmative by anticipating the arguments of his opponents and then refuting them. He quoted from the Bill itself to show that the religious liberty of the people of Ulster would be protested. He produced numerous statistics to show that Ireland's revenue was not increasing at present nearly as rapidly as is the increase in the expenditure by England to govern Ireland. The difference between the two he claimed was $5,000,000. Ireland, he said, was going back financially. Ireland was not increasing in wealth and prosperity as the opponents of Home Rule would attempt to prove. The increase in back accounts in Ireland resulted from the British system of charity, which was debasing but which the Irish had to accept.

Mr. McGuire continued to handle that effective bane and bogey of audiences, statistics, in eloquent fashion to show that Ulster was not the most important or enlightened part of Erin; but rather that there was a greater percentage of the Protestants of Ulster illiterate than elsewhere in the Island.

He then passed to arguments in favour of the Bill, claiming that ever since the Act of Union in 1800 England had been attempting to govern Ireland with one hand and crushing the life out of her with the other. There would always be difficulty while English legislated for Ireland. There would always be trouble with an Irish section in the British parliament fighting for one thing independent of other points of importance.

Mr. McGuire also argued that experience showed that the peoples whose lands were taken by the British became strong supporters of the Empire when granted the right of representation in the administration of their country.

He concluded with a plea for favorable consideration of his cause on account of the many Irish soldiers who had fought for the Empire.

Mr. McConnell in reply stated that his opponent had failed to touch on many strong arguments for the Bill which he would bring out in due course.

Referring to his opponents reference to the situation in Canada where the French Canadians with self government were loyal, he declared that many of them were not and speaking of Irishmen who had fought for England said that Sir George White, Sir Charles Beresford, Lord Roberts, and many others were opponents of Home Rule, while many Irish Nationalists had fought against Great Britain.

He went on to say that it was the United Irish League, composed of few important men, and comprising a small section of the populace only that fought for Home Rule.

Ireland at present was more fully represented in the Imperial House than England, Scotland, or Wales.

He analysed the economic situation in Ireland which he said was satisfactory and the agitation for Home Rule was carried on periodically to fill the offers of the United Irish League by appeals to America. The fact that Unionists and Nationalists lived side by side for so many years was proof that discontent was deep-seated.

PARKDALE EXPECT TO SPRING A SURPRISE ON SENIOR TEAM

Hughie Gall's Aggregation are Confident of Giving the Red and White Fourteen a good Close Game

FIELDWILL BE IN RATHER POOR CONDITION

PARKDALE EXPECT TO

It should be a good game this afternoon when the Senior team clash with the Parkdale aggregation. Hugh Gall's aggregation are composed largely of ex-Varsity men and can be depended to put up a good argument. Gall himself is one of the greatest backs Varsity ever had and his playing alone is worth going a long way to see. He kicks beautifully and is a runner who is equal, if not superior, to Jack Maynard. Parkdale are in second position in the O.R.F.U., and as they have played against the Alerts of Hamilton whom we are likely to meet in the Dominion Finals, we can get a relative idea of the strength of the Alerts after our game this afternoon. Parkdale is a strong team, and these O.R.F.U. aggregations are better teams for us to play against than Interprovincial teams, as the majority of players in the Ontario Union are ex-college men.

Our team is going into this afternoon's game in a very good condition and the game will be very interesting as Shaughnessy is going to try out some of his substitutes. These men have been put on the sidelines all the year and deserve a chance to show what they can do in a game. This will not in the least spoil the play as these substitutes are very little, if inferior at all, to the men now playing on the team. Fisher will probably be on the back division part of the time at least, and Williamson will probably figure in the scrimmage at some stage of the game. Jimmy Lee is not likely to take a chance of getting hurt again, and so will probably not play. The field is in a very bad condition owing to the rain which has been falling so continuously. It seems too bad that something can't be done to drain off some of the water at least as in some places the water is two or three inches deep. The line up of the team will likely be as follows:—

Halves—Billington, Draper, Fisher
Quarter—McEwen.
Scrimmage—Reid, Montgomery and Cruikshanks.
Inside Wings—Matheson, Timmins.
Middle Wings—Watrous, Binall.
Outside Wings—Laing, Lewis.
Flying Wing—Woodlatt.

FATHER STANTON ON CHANCES IN RULES

Advocates Abolition of Three Yard Rule

Discussing alterations for the betterment of Canadian football rules, Father Stanton of Ottawa College, suggests the abolishing of scoring points on rouges and kicks to the dead line. "Wind plays too great a factor in this method of scoring and where the elements are concerned, luck becomes too prominent to make the contest fair to both sides. If the present method of scoring single points is continued the ball should at least be brought out to the thirty-five yard line. With a strong wind and a good kicker it practically nullifies the defending team's chances of getting the ball beyond their quarter, and confines play to one end of the field." Father Stanton also favors the three-yard tackling rule being abandoned for a fair catch. He argues it will make the interpretation of the rule uniform with all referees.

CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

What Ho—another disturbance in the electrical field; another 14 fuse blown and a gust of hot air comes across. Just why so many of these hot air artists and ozone producers are allowed outside of their own little squirrel-cage is a mystery. True it is, they furnish some amusement to the noble Mechanicals in attempting a few pole climbing stunts, but they apparently fail to realize that it is only the charitable nature of we Mechanicals that keep us from grounding them with the rest of the superfluous microhms.

Seeing however, that they have been fairly quiet in the past and are very anxious to learn the game of Canadian Football, we Mechanicals, '14, will take great pleasure in picking up the quilt they threw down and wrapping them up in it.

Therefore, if all you clean, dainty little, would-be, engineers in Electricals '14 will appear on the main campus on Tuesday, November 12th, at 2 p.m. we will show you the difference between a magnetic field and a football field.

Come prepared, for you will be shunted around the field offering little resistance. You will also become so saturated that an eddy current will be generated in each of your reberri, and your loss due to hysterics will be amazing.

Come then, get your lesson and go back where you belong, a dirty motor needs wiping.

Your competent directors,
Mechanicals 1914.

OTTAWA FREE PRESS PUBLISHES LETTER REGARDING MCGILL

The Following Communication
Throws Interesting
Light on Recent Game
in Kingston

Kingston, Nov. 8th.

Sporting Editor, Free Press, Ottawa.
Dear Sir:—In justice to the McGill University Rugby Team I would like to make public a few facts regarding the game here yesterday with Queens. I cannot say authoritatively everything was done by the Intercollegiate Union to beat McGill so that Varsity could get the championship, but it looked that way to all of the students at Queens. First of all McGill had to accept Toronto referees, and one of them was a Varsity man and in no instance did McGill get the best of it. Elliott, the Queen's wing player, committed to many brutal fouls right through the game, it looked as though the referees cared little whether he crippled the whole McGill team or not. In most any other city he would have been liable for police intervention and charged with an attempt to maim and do bodily harm.

The sentiment among the majority of Queen's students is to see McGill win the championship as a chance of venue would benefit the union. But this year, the same as in previous years, Varsity is running the union, and they appear determined to secure the championship again by any old means. If there is a tie for the championship, McGill can beat Varsity if given a square deal in referees, but I would warn Mr. Graham Ross to be careful what men he accepts in this capacity.

If the tie is played off in Kingston (and I have my doubts whether there will be a tie at all) McGill will not want for support. They are good, game sports and deserve to win out this year. Thanking you for your valuable space.

Saturday it will be a great surprise to the railbirds, who, however, believe he will be in fit condition for the game with McGill.

The team had a very stiff workout. After a signal practice they lined up against the seniors for half an hour. The great surprise was the work of the back division. Ginter is now reaching his last year's sensational form, and the way he dodged through the seconds was wonderful. Cuzner is developing into a fine dodger and works in nicely with Ginter. Crawford and Webster were both given a chance, but neither has the class of the other pair. The wing line showed much more speed and ginger than in former workouts and pleased Coach Wright with the way they ripped through the seconds' line.

Harry Griffiths will be on hand tonight to take charge of the practice and also give the boys a chalk-talk. The "Football Wizard" has a great influence over the boys and his presence should make a difference in their work. He will be unable to accompany them to Queen's on Saturday.

President Butler of Columbia University announced at a recent meeting that a movement had been successfully organized in Holland for the establishment at Columbia University of a Queen Wilhelmina professorship of Dutch history, literature and language.

The Dutch Government and leaders in intellectual and commercial life in Holland are pledging half the funds necessary for the undertaking, on condition that the remaining half be raised in the United States. Columbia University has been chosen because of the historical relation of New York to Holland and the Dutch people.

SPLENDID FORENSIC EFFORTS

Mr. McGuire went back to 1782 to show that Ireland was in a most deplorable condition under an Irish Parliament from 1782 to 1800; but that under British Rule conditions were growing more and more flourishing. There was a period of steady growth.

Followed an appalling array of figures, commercial and financial to show increasing wealth. Emigration too was decreasing, and it was famine, not misgovernment which in certain years had reduced the population. The argument that Home Rule would reduce the work of the Imperial Parliament could not hold for the Imperial Parliament was not taking obvious steps in other directions to do this. Was Ireland badly treated?

£200,000,000 in all had been given Ireland by England. Where else could Ireland get this? The taxation for it would wipe out her industries.

£40,000,000 had been given by the land purchase act of 1881; and another £112,000,000 in 1903. £4,600,000 had been given for labourers cottages; and many other gifts had been given.

Mr. Bruneau for the affirmative referred to a statement by Mr. McConnell that from 1782 to 1800 under an Irish Parliament the Irish national debt had increased thirteen times and countered neatly by showing that while this was true the actual increase was from £2,000,000 to £26,000,000, while under the English rule which followed it increased in fifteen years to £117,000,000. He proceeded to portray Ulster as a spoilt child of the British Empire which could not realize that it was to be put in its proper place. He also minimized the bogey of the Papacy and the importance of Ulster. He claimed that there was not such a large proportion of Ulstermen against Home Rule. The demand that Ulster be given Home Rule also if granted would only perpetuate a bitter feud between religions, whereas Home Rule for all Ireland would bring about unity.

In an eloquent peroration he attacked the appeal to arms.

Mr. Farthing based his objections to Home Rule not so much on the antagonism of Ulster but because of its imperial significance apart from its effect on that single province.

He maintained that rather than favoring the Ulsterites England had on the contrary none much for the South. He quoted statistics to show that Ulster was not intolerant. In Ulster there were 200,000 more Protestants than Roman Catholics, but there was one Catholic county councillor for each 6000 Catholics, one Protestant County councillor for each 7000 Protestant. In the South, in Munster for example, there was a county councillor representing each 3600 Catholics, one Protestant for each 15000 Protestants.

He ridiculed the comparison of Ireland with the self-governing colonies and showed that the bill did not contemplate putting it in any such position as that held by Canada, Australia, or South Africa.

He maintained that the uppermost idea of the leaders of the Nationalist party was the absolute separation of Ireland from England, a policy suicidal to the Empire. Who he asked were for Home Rule? The Liberals of England opposed it as long as they dared and only offered Home Rule as a bribe for Irish support.

Do the Irish people want Home Rule? Mr. Farthing answered that the subscriptions of the Irish people were falling year by year. He quoted statistics to show it. It was not the inhabitants of Ireland that supplied the money. It was Irish-Americans, who hated Great Britain, who were fighting for Home Rule. Would these people do that to secure the enactment of a measure which would build up and unify the British Empire?

He quoted from Mr. Redmond's American speeches, in which he exhorted his hearers to stick to the principles of Parnell which were never to rest until the last link which joined England to Ireland had been severed.

Mr. Farthing laughed at the picture of Irish leaders fighting for Britain, showing that the great Irish soldiers who fought for England were Ulstermen and that the Nationalists soldiers had fought against England; that the Nationalists opposed any recruiting of troops among the Irish; that in the movement equivalent to the Boy Scout movement the boys were sworn in opposition to England and he quoted extensively from Nationalist leaders and Nationalist pamphlets to show that Home Rule was but the preliminary step to complete separation; that the Irish Nationalists were disloyal and hated the English.

He closed with the quotation Ulster will fight and Ulster will be right and sat down amidst tremendous applause.

Mr. Bruneau summed up for the affirmative after which Dr. Leacock gave a brief, critical address, of a typically humorous nature.

HIS MAJESTY'S

Seldom has such an excellent rendition of Gounod's version of Faust been given in Montreal as was sung at His Majesty's Theatre last evening and it was a delighted and thoroughly satisfied audience that thronged from its doors as the last outburst of applause died away and the curtain finally descended.

"Faust" by the virtue of its diversity of interest and the charm of its setting has come to be regarded

THINGS THEATRICAL

SCENE IN THE ABORN OPERA CO'S REVIVAL OF "THE BOHEMIAN GIRL" AT THE PRINCESS NEXT WEEK.

JAPANESE PRIMA DONNA WILL SING AT ORPHEUM

Patrons of the Orpheum will be treated to an act that will make a novel appeal to eye and ear alike. Madame Sumiko, the Japanese prima donna, has a wonderful wardrobe, containing gorgeous and truly Oriental kimonos over a century old. At each performance she will appear in a number of these in succession, so students of dress will have much to interest them. Mme. Sumiko is thoroughly versed in classical music, singing in both French and English Operas, and at the same time she preserves the purity of her Japanese singing. S. S. Takaori, her musical director, is accompanying her on this her first American tour. He will lead the orchestra during her acts.

"Honor Among Thieves," one of Joseph Hart's strongest Vaudeville Playlets, will hold an important spot on the bill. This sketch deals with the solution of a big financial deal and the many interesting situations therein. Hawthorne and Burt are comedians of the highest standard, they will offer "The Raw Recruit," a funny act. Maxine Brothers and Boby are European Acrobats; Blake and Amber will present a novel Travesty, while Muriel and Francis will offer some up-to-date Piano playing and singing; Chas. Weber is a juggler and is sure to please; Harris and Spindel are comedians who should create much laughter with their funny material.

"BOHEMIAN GIRL" AT PRINCESS NEXT WEEK

The production of Balfe's masterpiece at the Princess next week will undoubtedly draw big houses. "The Heart Bowed Down," and other ballads that have made "The Bohemian Girl" world-famous, will be rendered by talented operatic singers, while a musical innovation will be introduced in the beautiful "marble halls" scene, when "The Dance of the hours" from Ponchielli's "La Gioconda" will be given instead of the familiar minuet usually played.

The spectacular element in the Aborn production is exceptional, as it embodies the ideas of Edward P. Temple, of Hippodrome fame. The magnificent staging of the Aborn revival of "The Bohemian Girl" has aroused wonder and admiration at every turn.

MURIEL AND FRANCIS, CHARMING SINGING COMEDIENNES AT ORPHEUM NEXT WEEK.

popularly as the masterpiece of opera. Certainly it received popular acclaim last night.

Edwina's singing and acting of the part of Marguerite delighted the audience throughout. She possesses a very true and pure soprano voice, and her dramatic work in the scenes of her brother's death and the prison scene made these scenes unusually convincing and impressive. The part of Mephistopheles was most capably handled by Huberty; his manner and full baritone voice being peculiarly suited to the role. Conrad as Faust —Grand as Valentine—and Mdsle Ingram as Siebel left little to be desired from the musical or artistic viewpoints, while the work of the chorus was exceptionally good; this was particularly true of their singing of the "Soldiers Chorus," Act IV, Scene IV.

It was with Edwina that the audience was most pleased. It was only her second appearance in Montreal, but she has already won her way to the hearts of the public by the charm of her manner, and the excellence of her work.
